New Hobson college to include halal station amid discussions on improving Muslim student life

Leena Memon '25, the former co-president of Muslim Student Association (MSA) celebrated the impact this expansion of inclusive dining will have for students.

“It’s nice knowing that there will always be an option for some sort of entree or maybe a meat dish that’s accessible and meets dietary restrictions, plus knowing that every step of the cooking process was overseen.”

Siddiqui and Campus Wellness Dietitian Puneet Sethi have worked with MSA to assess and improve halal dining options, including addressing cross-contamination and implementing a new Ramadan meal plan that grants students two additional meal swipes per day to pick up meals to break their fast in the evening (iftar) and the next morning (suhoor).
